

Belmont Primary School Newsletter January 13th 2023

Dear Parents / Carers,

The new year is very much in full swing, something which is wonderfully exemplified when walking around the classrooms and seeing the children fully engaged and immersed in their various tasks and activities.

Year Six and Year Two Meetings

We very much look forward to seeing parents and carers of our Year Six children this Monday 16th January at 4pm in the Key Stage 2 hall to find out a bit more about the end of Key Stage Two assessments (or SATs as they may be more commonly known). The following Monday, we will welcome parents and carers of our Year Two children for a similar meeting in the Key Stage 1 hall.

World Book Day

This is on the 2nd March this year. However, we would like to give advance information that we will not be asking children to dress in costume for a number of reasons. Of course, as with all decisions, this will be met, no doubt, with a variety of responses. However, we believe that this is a responsible decision given the current financial climate. We will, of course, be celebrating and commemorating the event and more information will be shared nearer the time.

Christmas Card Competition

A number of children took part in this competition organised by Simon Clark MP. We were pleased to welcome Mr Clark into school today to award Scarlett H in Year Three and Isla A in Year Six their prizes for winning the competition! Well done to both children.

Trading Cards

We have not had these in school for some time but now children are bringing these in to share with their friends. I am perfectly happy that they are doing so and fully (or almost fully) approve of them doing so. However, I have had the need to remind children to ensure that they play appropriately with these and, if this is not the case, I will unfortunately have to request that they are not brought into school. I absolutely do not want to follow this course of action and as such, I am confident that children will be responsible with the cards.

Wishing you all a pleasant weekend,

Yours Sincerely,

Mr C Gibson
